Dear Dr. Mills:

St. James School is ecstatic about using the computer software program, Compututor, developed for the Houston Read Commission. The teachers of St. James have evaluated this program and are excited about how it will enhance our children in their communication skills. Our program teaches phonics and writing skills to children ages pre-k3 through 8th grade. The use of computers supports our early child development curriculum by presenting basic reading exercise in a different format. The daily use of computers will enhance the reading process.

We recommend the use of Compututor to others to incorporate in their reading and writing curriculum. It is a fun and effective tool for children.

Sincerely,

Luegera Carter
